REMOVING THE LANGUAGE BARRIERS IN BANKING SERVICES

Increasingly banking institutions must not only attract the diverse populations in the United States, but must also educate them about their options and the services available to them. Studies have shown that non-native English speakers are unable to understand some of the financial commitments they make. The ability to provide education in multiple languages enhances a bank's ability to truly affect its community.

AIA is a leader in translation and interpretation. We also provide language training. Call us today for more information about the types of programs we can offer to your company and to your clients.
